THE house committee on postoffices and WASHINGTON, October 28 .- There is no ostroadr has agreed upon a plan for adjusthange in the general situation. Both parties are awaiting the announcement of the standing committees of the house, when the standing committees of the house, when the work of the extra session will begin, and the speculations now insulged in reference to adjournment will be set at rest. In the Republican ranks the question of the surrender of the President to the party or the party to him still continues to be agitated with varying results. Sometimes it is Hayes, and sometimes the party leaders that have surrendered, but both keep up their opposition to the Democrats, who remain quiet spectators of a contest that so far has been rich in esults to them, and promises a still more abundant yield. THE TENNESSEE DELEGATION, Bright and Whitthorne have a number of applicants for both places. Colonel Young presented the names of several "eligible parties," among them James H. Newsom, for reading clerk; J. Harvey Mathes, for assistant doorkeeper, and William Kerr, for folding-room clerk. Of these it is scarcely probable that more than one will be appointed

Mr. Walter Goodman, who was here erday, and who was commissioned by Colonel Marsh Polk, state treasurer and exsurance companies licensed to do, or are doing ousiness in Tennessee, arrived in this city on Friday, en route home. From him I learn that, in obedience to his instructions, he offered to examine into the affairs of the Globe Mutual Life, Equitable Life, and Manhattan Life, but they all refused, alleging as a reason either that they had been examined by the hasurance commissioner of New York that they were doing so little business that they could not undertake the expense. The Home Fire insurance company promptly accepted Mr. Goodman's services, with results every way satisfactory. Mr. Goodman says e Home is in excellent condition, as sound as any company in the country, and every way reliable. When it is remembered how that, more than a dozen at one time, popular that, more than a dozen at one time, popular and paying life insurance, and several fire companies, have gone into liquidation and ceased to do business, very much to the surprise of a confiding public, the work of Mr. Goodman will be appreciated, and Colonel Polk will have credit for initiating the only means available to the public whereby the real status and standing of life and fire intrance companies can be ascertained. EX LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR DAVIS, OF MIShanks to the efforts of Mr. Money, of Mis-

While performing the duties of his highest position at Jackson, Mr. Davis intrusted the management of the postoffice his highest position at Jackson, Mr. Davis intrusted the management of the postoffice to a young man of supposed good character. In the absence of this worthy the office was burglariously entered and robbed of five or six hundred dollars in currency, the property of the United States. For this the United State commissioner at Macon had two suspensed positions arroated who seem to the pected parties arrested, who, sent to the grand jury, were indicted, and upon trial were found guilty and sent to the Albany penitentiary, where they are now serving out lost from the sureties of Davis, who is too poor to pay a dime of it. But, as the transgressors have been punished, and it is considered a hardship that Davis, too, should be imprisoned, Mr. Money is making an earnest effort to have the agest dismissed or execution stayed and the first to have the case dismissed or execution stayed until a fur-ther hearing can be had. Davis is a very earnest Hepublican, but Mr. Money does not stop to consider that fact where the interests of a constituent are to be considered. > THRILLING STORY. The regular correspondent in this city of the St. Paul Pioneer Press, writing to his paper a few days ago, tells a story—the re-sult of domestic infelicity—which will have suit of domestic infelicity—which will have some interest for your readers, since the "brother from the south" mentioned, was a well-known Memphis lawyer, whose promise, when he died, outstripped that of any man of his age at our bar. Mr. Wheelock, who is himself well known in Memphis, says: "Years ago in St. Paul I knew a young lawyer of bright promise, who was then in lawyer of bright promise, who was then in the office of John B. Brisbin. He was, how-ever, laid low on a bed of sickness from which he never recovered. During his illness, just before the war, he was visited by a brother from the south, who was with him when he died. This brother returned to his home in the south, and was soon after drawn into the maelstrom of the war, and served in the Confederate army. On the other side, in > the Confederate army. On the other side, in the United States navy, another brother did gallant service, and although still young, has strived to the rank of commander. A few short months ago I saw him on the streets of Washington, a very handsome man, with fine robust physique. I knew that he had passed through trouble enough to bow down even one of his robust appearance, yet he seemed to bear up under it manfully, and none but his most intimate friends knew of the kanker that was gnawing at his heart. Two months ago I heard he was lying ill at the naval hospital. I went there to see him, and found a complete wreck of his former self. His moral strength had at last forsaken him, and he gave himself up to all the delights and horrors of strong drink until one night he was picked up in the streets and one night he was picked up in the streets and carried a helpless manuac to the hospital, where I found him. He is now an inmate of the inebriate asylum at Binghampton. Day before yesterday I accompanied a young lady, a distant relative of the family, to the Catholie convent in Georgetown. She wished to see a child which has been placed there in the tender care of the kind Sisters. We found a beautiful, happy child, not yet three years old—a child that would cause the heart of any parent to rejoice—with bright blue eyes, and golden ringlets, who counted on he on Thursday night last, held a caucus at the rooms of Colonel Casey Young, for the purpose of ascertaining how many offices could be given to our State by the officers of the house. Messrs. Young, Caldwell and Riddle, who had been previously appointed to ascertain the fact, reported that only two could be had—one under the postmaster, and one under the doorkeeper. These are claimed by Dibbrell, Bright and Young, and up to this time no conclusion has been reached. HORRIBLE MURDER.

Young Girl Murdered by a Disappointed Lover, who Sets Fire to her Father's House to Cover up his Crime.

TERRE HAUTE, IND., October 31.—A horrible murder was committed last night, about three o'clock, eight miles west of this city, near Sandford station, on the Indianapolis and St. Louis railroad, at the residence of European Tritt a wealth. Burgoyne Tritt, a wealthy farmer. His daughter Rosa, nineteen years of age, has been the object of attentions from a young man in the neighborhood, and also from Sylvanus Burnham, a hired man, who had Sylvanus Burnham, a hired man, who had been in the employ of Tritt for three years. On Sunday evening Rosa's lover paid her a visit, which caused a quarrel with Burnham, and he threatened her, saying he would get even with his rival. He was also incensed by Rora's brother, who wanted to whip him Monday, but was prevented by the elder Tritt. Last night the two old folks were awakend by a light, and found the upper story of the house on fire, and Burnham missing. The bouse was consumed with everything in it, after which Rosa's corpse was found in the ruins, with legs, arms and head burned off, but there was evidence enough left to show that the girl's throat had been cut and a deep wound inflicted on the side. She had also been smothered in a large carpet, so that the trunk was not much burned. PIANOS: T is no longer a question among sensible purchasers of musical instruments as to what maker is best known for the excellence of his work, it being well understood at this time that such makers as are continually placing themselves in the front by their bure and showy advertisements are no better entitled to be considered supremely skillful than others of more modest pretensions. This, with the certainty that all huge advertisements must command a huge price, and that this price must adhere to the cost of the article, has induced purchasers in these latter times to acquaint themselves well with the intrinsic merit of any article, an investment in which is contemplated, and shrewdly calculate all advantages to be obtained in price. Especially is this the case with articles of high value like Planos. The public no longer looks reliantly to makers famous through old associations. Observers know too well that in America new enterprises are constantly show ing themselves, supported by the most skillful and ingenious minds; that new ideas and inventions are constantly pushing to the front; and to any one wanting a Plano, the question now considered of most importance is, what are the best terms and figures on which I can purchase one as skillfully made, and as durable as any, and warranted to be so, by a house in which I can place implicit confidence? Among Planos of intrinsic worth, and which are really first-class, the "Mathushek" yields to none in perfectness of execution, sweetness of tone, and unmistakable durability. Among Parlor Organs the "Burdett" ranks equal to the best.
